Sing a New Song Caryl McAdoo

The untimely death of her father shatters Mary Esther Robbins' heart and separates her from her grade school best friend, Samuel Levi Baylor. During the twenty years apart, she fulfills her life's dream of penning new songs and singing God's praise with a Christian band, while he tends his growing cattle herd and shares the Good News at every opportunity. The Lord brings her home then throws them back together when Samuel agrees to help Mary Esther move and remodel her childhood home. The two lost decades vanish, and their time together convinces both the other is the true soul mate. But misunderstanding and fear keeps them from expressing their true love. Though jealousy rears its ugly head, can love and commitment hold the two together? And while they're both committed to ministering the Gospel together, can they do it as husband and wife?
