Seeking justice on behalf of the oppressed can seem overwhelming, even futile. What can be done in the face of horrific evils such as child prostitution, illegal imprisonment or bonded child labor? Yet Christians cannot view the pursuit of justice simply as an extra-credit option in our witness to the world because injustice often is at the root of human suffering. Injustice is an integral part of why so many are in need, why so many remain without adequate food, water, health and shelter.

This study guide is designed to help you process the challenging issues and confusing questions raised by the prevalence of injustice in our world today. It is also written to help you understand what others are doing about injustice and to discern what God might be calling you to do.

A four-week study that focuses on how God empowers his people to join in his work on behalf of the oppressed. This discussion-oriented study integrates reflections on portions of Good News About Injustice with opportunities to analyze biblical texts. Illustrated by both the companion video and stories from around the world, this study enables groups to address some of the tough questions raised by injustice and what we can do about it.
