WARNING: This book is for mature audiences only.

Ethan Stewart is the type of man who likes to get what he wants. Intelligent, attractive, and successful, he doesn't care about straddling the line between refined and well-educated sailor. Coming from a background rife with poverty, he still manages to work his way from medical school to eventually owning his own medical practice. Despite holding onto a secret that changed the direction of his life, as far as Ethan was concerned, he had everything he'd ever asked for.

So, when Alexandra Miller comes into the picture, the attraction is undeniable. Instant. She is everything that Ethan loves in a woman from her beautiful lips to the curves she tries so hard to hide. She's a woman whose background includes having the President of the United States in her social circle, but he doesn't plan to be intimidated. What Ethan wants, Ethan gets. The problem? Roderick Hamilton---the boyfriend that Alexandra doesn't quite know how to let go of. The other problem? Now that he's tasted her, he doesn't quite know how to let go of her.
