The award-winning play

1989, South Africa, and Josh Gilmore is poised to become the first white athlete to break 10 seconds for the 100m, carrying the hopes of a racist regime. But he's conscripted into a war under the fanatical Papa Louw. In the rubble of an Angolan village they discover a wounded black freedom fighter. When Papa orders Josh to carry the man back to the border, a remarkable bond is forged. Josh is forced to make a choice: between the humanity he shares with his enemy and the iron will of his commander. Twenty years later Josh returns from exile to seek justice — but he finds a different South Africa...and a different Papa.
